FYI

DREAMMAKERS DINNER TO HIGHLIGHT AND ENCOURAGE THOSE WHO POSITIVELY IMPACT THE FUTURE OF LANCASTER COUNTY – We all share hopes and dreams for Lancaster County, but it's those special few – the visionaries, the planners, the thought leaders – who make dreams come true, brightening the future for all of us.

DreamMakers— an event, led by a Steering Committee comprised of local business, education, government and other civic-minded leaders—will celebrate our region's ability to work collaboratively and creatively to retain the unique assets of this region and enhance them through individual initiative and effort.

The March 16th dinner at 6:30 pm, to be held in the Liberty Place Theater in Lancaster, will feature nationally known speakers, including Max King, CEO of the Heinz Endowments, and a major underwriter of Renew Pennsylvania, which is committed to restoring Pennsylvania's economic competitiveness, government effectiveness, and quality of life. He will be joined on the podium by the President of Congress for the New Urbanism, Mr. John Norquist, who will share with the audience how other communities throughout the country are working to improve their towns and cities. Former Executive Director of the Lancaster County Planning Commission, Ronald Bailey, will speak about Renew Pennsylvania.

“DreamMakers was conceived to inspire individuals to work proactively to make Lancaster County better for residents, businesses, and land holders,” says Rob Bowman, Chair of the DreamMaker dinner. “The dinner will include professionals and citizens from all walks of life, and celebrate those core principles we all agree upon by inspiring others to get involved and move our region forward, while remaining true to that which makes Lancaster County a preferred place to live, to work and to raise families.”
