Yes, downtown revitalization works when done correctly. Hear how downtown Lancaster can be brought to its potential without losing its unique identity and becoming another “Could be anywhere” place.

Christopher Leinberger is a land use strategist, developer, teacher, consultant and author, helping to make progressive development profitable. He is currently a Visiting Fellow at The Brookings Institution in Washington, DC, focusing on research and practices that help transform traditional and suburban downtowns and other places that provide “walkable urbanity”. He is the author of “Turning Around Downtown: Twelve Steps to Revitalization”

He is also a Professor of Practice and Director of the Graduate Real Estate Program at the University of Michigan.

In addition, he is a founding partner of Arcadia Land Company, a progressive real estate development firm which has had projects in Independence, Missouri, the Philadelphia metropolitan area and downtown Albuquerque.

Chris has written award-winning articles for publications such as the Atlantic Monthly, Wall Street Journal, Urban Land magazine, among others, and is the author or has contributed chapters to six books.

He has been profiled by national broadcast and print media such as CNN, Today Show, National Public Radio, Progressive Architecture, among others.

Chris is a graduate of Swarthmore College and Harvard Business School.
