Allen Biehler is the Pennsylvania Secretary of Transportation. Secretary Biehler has over 35 years of public and private sector experience in transportation engineering, planning, construction administration and public transportation management. He has written articles for national transportation professional journals and served on committees of the Transportation Research Board and the American Public Transportation Association. He is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh with a degree in civil engineering, and holds a master's equivalent certificate in transportation from Yale University.

WALTER KULASH

Walter Kulash is a traffic engineer and community-planning consultant based in Orlando. He is a nationally recognized leader in livable traffic design, which argues against the conventional approach to traffic congestion. Mr. Kulash believes that adding capacity to move more vehicles at higher speeds, not only doesn't work, it makes the problem worse. He advocates a more inclusive view of traffic and street design – from traffic performance to economic impact to public safety to quality of life – where effective redesign can calm traffic and change motorist behavior.

AVOIDING THE TRAFFIC

Lancaster County is one of the most beautiful places to live, work and visit. But the traffic can be downright ugly. And it just keeps getting worse. What's the answer?

Join us on January 31 at an informative Transportation Forum where we will try to unsnarl the maddening subject of traffic and better understand our options. Hear what experts say about building our way out of traffic congestion, and our willingness to live with ever-increasing traffic and delays. Learn how traffic will affect the future of Pennsylvania and Lancaster County.

Please drive carefully and allow for traffic.
